Introduction The problem of the propagation of electromagnetic waves produced by a magnetic line dipole source located at the corner of a right angled wedge is considered. It is assumed that an impedance or mixed boundary condition is prescribed on one of the wedge surfaces and that a homogeneous boundary condition is prescribed on the other. The impedance boundary condition is such that surface waves are generated. The amplitude of the surface wave is determined. A comparison is made between the magnitude of the surface wave for this problem and that of a magnetic-line dipole source located at the corner of a right angled wedge with the same impedance boundary condition prescribed on both surfaces. The latter problem has already been treated by the authors. (See Karp and Karal.) The comparison of the surface waves for the two different configurations is made on the assumption that the sources have the same strength. The far field representation of the radiated electromagnetic field is...
